BRANDON MAIL.

THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1893.

TO BE GRIT OR WHAT.

The recent convention of farmers in this city gives assurance "some people high up in the order" have an anxiety for the success of something else as well as forming—even Greenwayism. In his address, which we quote in full in other columns, Mr. Elder, the president, took occasion to modestly censure Mr. Greenway for his broken promises to the farmers, and in a later session, Mr. McKellar, Mr. Greenway's deputy minister of agriculture not liking the truth to come to the surface raised the question of privilege; and then Mr. Elder, seeing how the truth was affecting his master of the Chicago hotel denied making the statement the Free Press credited him with making. In a spirit of justice, Mr. Percival, president of the Brandon association, defended the Free Press reporter, and we may here add if Greenway, McKellar or any others of that ilk desire it we can procure a dozen affidavits proving the correctness of the Free Press report. The reporter of that "Independent" paper, the Brandon Times was informed sent a similar version of Mr. Elder's address to that paper but the independent (?) publisher being too solicitous for the welfare of the premier erased it from the report to give fair play, you know.

What we want to know is this: Is this institute to be run in the interest of the farmers, giving praise and censure respectively where they are due, even as they affect governments, or is it to be run as a whitewashing machine in the interests of Mr. Greenway. To our mind it would have shown infinitely better taste on the part of Mr. Greenway's tool, McKellar, if he had allowed someone else to raise the privilege question even if there was a justification for it, which there was not. He is paid a salary by the public for doing a certain work and he constrains that work to be whitewashing his paymaster only. If he had displayed some of the ability in preparing the address he read, and perhaps written by some one else, though the only qualification it displayed in the reader was a talent for a tolly manufactory he displayed in covering up the weakness of his employer, he would have rendered better service to the farmers of the west.

There was another man again, who we are credibly informed is seeking for a seat in parliament somewhere, Mr. Underhill, who was so choke full of agriculture that he had to censure some Federal representatives, for taking passes from the C.P.R. but he could not find it in his puritanical heart to say one word Sifton, Greenway, et al for taking against annual passes from both the C.P.R. and the N.P.R., whilst ranting around the country in the interest of the side show at Chicago. If these institutes are to be in the interest of agriculture only let the orators confine themselves to agriculture, or if they are destined to handle every question from the growing of white clover to the adjustment of England's foreign policy, let it be as understood, that members in taking part may find themselves free to discuss one side of every question as well as the other. There is not a paper in the country that is more disposed to assist the farmer in his present struggle for relief and encouragement in this country on fair grounds than the Mail. If it can be done free from politics and partisanship, let us have it so, or if the royal road is only through the consideration of the vices and virtues of the governments of the country let us understand it that way, that the question may be handled accordingly.

VALUES OF FARM LANDS.

The corners into which men are often driven to prove that their political party are far excellent the party for the country are peculiar, to say the least of them. At the convention at Ottawa the other day Sir Richard Cartwright advanced an argument in favor of free trade and against, we presume, a revenue tariff that farming lands in Canada were decreasing in value. Then how will he account for the decline in values in England, Ireland and many of the American states, where the fall has been greater even than in Ontario. Every one with an ounce of discernment knows the only things to give value to farm lands are the demands for it, and the prices for the productions from it. Of late years there has been a gradual decline the world over in the prices of the chief agricultural products and that is one reason for the decline in the value of farm lands in Ontario as well as in England and other countries. In Ontario as well as in England there has been a heavy emigration to the Canadian Northwest and that is the second cause for the decline in the value of lands in those countries a part altogether from the trade policy of countries, separated from the boom features, at the same time there has been an advance in farm lands, in proportion to the immigration into the country.

But are we sure the decline in values of farm lands in Ontario is as marked as Sir Richard Cartwright puts it? For instance according to the returns of the Bureau of Industries there was $4,375,000 more spent in buildings in Ontario in 1892 than there was in the year previously and fully $9,000,000 more invested in live stock. If these two items of nearly thirty and one half millions be added to the value of real estate it will do much towards evening up the latter. It will at least show the agricultural classes in that province did not lose ground that year, and the comparison may be extended with advantage to other years. Mr. Cartwright may think Free Trade as he understands it has a very silvery side, but it will not bear up the sophistries he is endeavoring to heap upon it.

If the Greenway Government have an ounce of discretion, they will keep Jack-in-the-box McKellar at home, when the next Farmers' Institute is called. His chief mission on such occasions appears to be to muzzle public expression, by interruptions whenever the efficiency or good faith of the Greenway government is called in question at these gatherings. President Elder is an out and out Reformer, but has the manliness to occasionally treat the government to the censure they deserve, but whenever he rose to do it at the recent institute meetings Jack-napes McKellar was ready with his gag—a question of privilege, a point of order, or a demand to withdraw a resolution or a report. For his zeal in the cause of his master, he made himself the laughing stock not only of Conservatives, but of many fair minded Grits as well. If he is amenable to feeling, the manly way in which Mr. James, the gentleman present from the Department of Agriculture, Ontario, handled the subjects of the meeting, should, at least, set him thinking. That gentleman told friends he was not here as a politician, but had to acknowledge McKellar was here as a partisan crank. The Toronto gentleman built himself up in the esteem of all auditors at every session, while the other sunk himself in the contempt of all parties present. Mr. Greenway had promised to be present, but was too busy mixing drinks at his Chicago hotel to keep his word, and the despatching of his man Friday was apparently the best he could do for the farmers of Manitoba; but of this he may take notice he has sent the man once too often for his own good.

To read the Greenway Press of this country one would think the people were either a lot of fools or a lot of knaves. In one column these prints are lauding the government for the good Northern Pacific bargain they made, and in the adjoining column they are denouncing the C. P. R. for not giving the country lower freight rates. Now an ounce of reasoning would show that if the N. P. is a competing road we have competition, and the people are a lot of knaves to continue clamoring for what they have already got, and if they have no competitor in the N. P. R., then they are a lot of fools to say they have one.

The Winnipeg Tribune says:—"Supposing the Hudson's Bay Railway was built what guarantee would we have that it would engage in genuine competition with the C. P. R.?" Well, could we not get them to give us a letter saying "they would charge no higher rates than the C. P. R. were charging," as Greenway got from the N. P. R., and would not that be a guarantee to us as the N. P.'s letter was to him? The thing is easily enough got over.

FARMERS INSTITUTE.

Mr. Dale of Glenboro and Mr. Strachan also replied to the speech when the chairman called upon Mr. C. C. James, M. A. Deputy Minister of Agriculture for the speech of the evening. He said: "It was a peculiar pleasure for him to come to this Great North-west, about which he had heard and read so much. It was a matter of surprise to him that they sent for him to come up here, to give them instruction. They did not need instruction for they had the men around them, enterprising men, who were well up in all matters of interest to the farmers. On his way to this country, he spent a week at Chicago and it was no small pleasure to him to see the natural products of this great Dominion placed side by side with the products of Europe, Australia and the United States. Canada will take no second place with any other country exhibiting at Chicago. In the cheese competition, Canada was far ahead of all competitors. In butter, Canada earned off 15 out of 40 awards. Only one country had a greater variety of minerals than ours, that was New South Wales. He thought New South Wales could come out first in this competition; although it would surprise him to hear that Canada had not obtained the second place when the results were known. In fruits, Ontario and not equal, surpassing even California in the luxuriance of its display. Canada was the only country making a full exhibit of vegetables. This point struck him as he went through these exhibits; he began to think that this country is a wonderful country after all.

There is another great natural product on which the country depends far greater than on its wealth, that is the development of the youth of our country. If we can only give the young men the proper start in life with the sturdy constitution and the good morals for which our people are famed, we would be building up a generation of sturdy yeomen which were the backbone of any country. This country is not a great country of arts, we don't need to bring our people up to be doctors, artists and such like, but the one calling to which they all belonged we have seen the young men of our country, flocking to the cities and the States and the consequence. There is such an influx of young men to take up these professions in the towns and cities, that if something is not done soon this we would find the condition of things more serious. We should check what is an almost universal evil. The country should begin a right; we are a young country and have the elements to work upon. People would say, there could be no science in Agriculture. The boys and girls of the country would be more interested, if we could make them to understand how this soil was formed and the many changes it underwent before being ready for the plough, for in time, you go down the streets of Winnipeg and notice the different facial expressions of certain of the residents of that city, and you can tell the time this one is a Frenchman this one a Scotchman and so on, you can tell by the general build of men, and their nationality.

It is just the same with the different kinds of plants; we must study them before we can really become acquainted with the different species etc. We know of no fruit which has not its enemies, bugs, insects and parasites. It has been computed that the parasites share equally the profits with the farmers. It is not possible to grow potatoes without the use of Paris Green. The only way to fight these evils is to train our young men, who are taking our places; to make them able to meet these difficulties; not in a shipshod sort of way; but the right, the only way; without this training we should not expect our young men to go out and fight these pests. We must endeavor to interest our boys and girls to collect specimens of different insects and give them an insight into the habits and customs of these insects and the way to treat them. The whole thing depends upon making the right start. There are a thousand and one subjects in connection with Agriculture, of which you could be interested. If curiosity is the method of farming could only be aroused among the sons of farmers, then they would come back to the old pursuit of farming even though they graduate through a college to take up the occupation with a good education. The result of education, as we view it to-day is due to the system employed during the last 25 years. It is possible to introduce a system, as in Ontario where they had an Agricultural College to train teachers along the line of Agriculture.

The fourth session of the Institute was opened by prayer from the Rev. H. C. Mason. An address on "Freight Rates" by C. Branson of Portage La Prairie was an important event of the evening, in which Mr. Branson said that they would be very thankful for the proposed reduction of 10 per cent which the C. P. R. had promised to bring into effect. They ought to be able to export 100 millions of wheat instead of 20 millions, but neither capital nor muscle would care to come to this country to farm on shares with the present freight rates and live. The C. P. R. held the fate of the country in their hands.

The president, then, in a few words paid a high compliment to Mr. Branson for his excellent speech and after a vote of thanks had been passed to them for the use of the city hall, and selections from the orchestra and choir, Prof. C. C. James was called on to deliver his address on "Farming on business principles."

The agricultural interests of this country stand foremost. From statistics it was shown that the agricultural output, at the last census was 500 millions of dollars; fisheries and mines $50,000,000 and manufactures $475,000,000. Some might say by this that the manufactures were equal to the production of the farms, but it should be remembered that the larger proportion of manufactures are based on agricultural produce. In what might be called the hunting age, it required 20 square miles to sustain thirty people, and in the early history of Ontario, as some of their grandfathers could remember, one square mile would aust, in about 200 people. At the present time, it would sustain about 300 persons. On every hand we see the industries making rapid strides of development. Such great cities as New York were rapidly being made famous by their cities of factories. The farmer must keep pace with these industries. A farmer was in reality a manufacturer, even more so than a miller. A farmer to be successful must follow the lines of the manufacturers. All the capital must be used in the development of, and all the land must be used. It was the aim of every manufacturer to make all his capital produce as much as possible—it should be so with the farmer. Unused land was like so much capital locked up in the bank.

FARMERS INSTITUTE.

The fifth session or closing session was opened with prayer by the Rev. Father Bousseau. The chief feature of this session was the adoption of the following resolutions:

AGRICULTURE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Whereas, the chief pursuit, and the highest interests of the Province of Manitoba depend upon the success of agriculture; and whereas, the training given in the public schools has the effect of leading too great a proportion of the population into mercantile and professional pursuits, therefore, be it resolved: That in the opinion of the Manitoba Central Farmer's Institute agriculture should be taught in the public schools of Manitoba, and recommend the Government to take immediate action for the introduction of elementary agriculture in at least the rural schools of the province.

The second resolution was that all presidents of local institutes shall by virtue of their office be members of the Central Institute during their term of office, and that all the officers of the Central Institute shall be members of the central committee for the year next ensuing after their term of office.

The work of the institute was brought to a close on Thursday evening, with Mr. Bedford, the vice president in the chair. The work of this final session was of no particular importance. All the members journeyed in the afternoon to the Experimental Farm, where a most enjoyable time was spent. There must have been between 3,000 and 4,000 people present. The Brandon citizens band, under the able leadership of Prof. Weigand, and chorused everybody with the good music rendered from day to day. An important feature was a "bonanza" which would have been a trip to the river for 10 cents. Shortly after four the assembly passed over the bridge to listen to the speech given by Mr. Braithwaite and P. J. Jones. Mr. Braithwaite again visited the young men of our country to study farming from a scientific standpoint. From a business standpoint, the men of Manitoba have been sure that they had the physical duration, intelligence and ability to prove themselves second to none in the Dominion.

The Reeves of the county met on the 21st of June at the Silver Creek school house for the purpose of taking joint action in levying the rate of taxation on the railway lines. They have been advised by their solicitors that the railway company, having earned its land grant, the lands can be no longer held as exempt from taxation. The exemption from taxation is not a result of any act of the Dominion Government; but when the Provincial Government granted the railway a right of $6,400 per mile advance on the land grant, legislation was passed by the provincial legislature which exempted the lands in the province from taxation, so that the security of the advance should not be impaired; whether that power of exemption existed after the land had been earned by the railway company is a point to be considered in successfully contesting the position. It seems against that a municipality which gave a bonus to draw the railway away from the country was the burden of that bonus, and the country which suffered by the deflection and in whose bounds the railway lands are situated should be made to suffer a loss of revenue by the exemption of the lands from a taxation.

FOOTBALL.

Souris vs. Brandon Reeves—Contest for Silver Medal.

This match took place at about 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, on the Exhibition grounds. The visitors won the toss and kicked with the wind, which was blowing very strongly at the time and kept the ball in the neighborhood of the Brandon goal. The goal was in constant danger; but owing to the excellent play of the back, Forrester and Houston, the Souris were only successful in scoring one goal. At half time the game was changed, Brandon's being favored, with the wind, it goes to put up their usual play and in a few minutes one goal was scored. The forwards began to play a swift combination game, and before time was called, scored two more goals. The visiting team were engaged, and on their excellent forward play, Clark, Hammett, King and their comrades into themselves. For the home team, Irwin, in goal, put up a game that can scarcely be surpassed.
